OUR FORESTS

Indonesia has some of the richest forest in the world. About seventeen years ago the total area of forested land is approximately 120 million hectares.

These forests have existed for millions of years and they have much to offer us. They are important for their products, such as timber, rattan, resin, etc. they are also important for keeping the soil fertile. The leaves of the forest trees fall to the ground and become humus. The humus is fertilizer for the soil. The forests are also important for preventing soil erosion and floods. The roots of the trees prevent the soil from being washed away by the rain.

Some years ago the forests in Indonesia looked from the air like an unbroken carpet of green. Today there are a lot of bare patches where trees have been cut down and cleared. The trees have been cut down for timber. Forests are cleared for farms, mines and settlements. In some areas the destruction is continuing at a very rapid rate. If we do not stop this, our forests will be gone soon.

Our government realizes this and has taken some steps to prevent the destruction. Some regulation have been issued to protect the forests. In addition, reforestation projects are being carried out. These projects are as important as other big development projects. It is our duty as good citizens to help the government carry out these programmes successfully.

My Bees

I live in the country, and there is a large garden round my house. I have a lot of bees in this garden, and they make honey for me. It is very good honey, because there are a lot of flowers in my garden, and the bees make their honey from these flowers. Some times a bee stings me, but I don’t mind. When I collect the honey, I wear a net over my face and cover my hand. Then the bees do not sting me.

I keep my bees’ honey at home. I and all my family eat it. We never buy any honey or jam in the shops, because my wife makes all our jam from the fruit in our garden. It tastes much better than the jam from shops, we think.

42. What does the text above tell us about?
